

Delivering smart business services to harness the value of IoT data

IoT services require a wide range of technologies and often involve integrating multiple systems and devices. Another challenge is the smart visualization and proactive processing of huge amounts of incoming data. Atos's end-to-end IoT capabilities can help enterprises quickly overcome these challenges, using Mendix to extend our set of reusable assets and create a compelling user experience.

Mendix integrates perfectly with our customer-centric approach to delivering IoT services — from collecting customer requirements through development and finally managing the services. Mendix is particularly valuable in the development phase, with an integrated connector kit and reusable components.

One of the most challenging tasks in any IoT project is to create a single data set from different sources, like databases, devices and systems. In this area, the Mendix connector kit delivers outstanding value, supporting the Atos IoT low-code team and reducing development time by more than 40%.

Kick-start your IoT transformation journey

Reducing time to value within your business can keep you ahead of the competition. At Atos, we use proven, pre-configured, pre-integrated IoT solutions combined with the speed and ease of Mendix to quickly unlock the value of your data.

You benefit from our experience delivering ready-made IoT applications and solution building blocks. Our service delivery model is pragmatic and modular: From the discovery of new opportunities to implementation, we propose the IoT and analytics solutions and services that best suit your needs.
